ANSELL PARTNERS WITH AMRON INTERNATIONAL AS MASTER DISTRIBUTOR OF ITS VIKING™ LINE OF DRY DIVING SUITS

Suits fulfil the needs and requirements of divers worldwide working in the harshest environments

10 April - Iselin, NJ – Ansell, a global leader in protection solutions and leading manufacturer of chemical protective apparel, announces it has entered into a partnership with Amron International, making them the full master distributor of Ansell VIKING™ branded products into Canada and the US.

All products in the Viking portfolio will continue to be manufactured by Ansell in the same Ansell manufacturing facility as they have been for the last decade. The partnership with Amron allows the flexibility to package and bundle many of the diving components together and will provide customers superior support, knowledge and customer service.

“Viking rubber dry suits have been innovated over a number of years to fulfil the needs of divers working in the harshest commercial environments around the globe including those in Fire, Rescue, Public Safety, Military, and Law Enforcement,” says François le Jeune, Body Protection CCO at Ansell. “Amron’s knowledge and experience within the professional diving market will help to accelerate the growth of the Viking brand, as they will be able to service distributors and dealers through a complete range of diving solutions.”
